Governor talks jobs in West Tennessee

Tennessee Gov. Phil Bredesen and members of his Jobs Cabinet will travel to Weakley County on Sept. 8 for a roundtable discussion on jobs in West Tennessee. The discussion will begin at 3 p.m. at the Board of Education Building in Dresden.

"It's important the Jobs Cabinet gets out and talks with individual communities to make sure we're working together to meet local and regional needs," Bredesen said.

The cabinet includes commissioners from seven state departments as well as representatives from higher education and business trade groups. This visit to West Tennessee, including a stop in Haywood County the morning of Sept. 8, is the second meeting of the "Hands On Tennessee" tour by the Jobs Cabinet, which Bredesen created in March to increase efforts toward job recruitment and expansion across the state.

The Pacer will follow up on this event to see how the discussions will affect UTM students and citizens of Weakley County.

'Worm' sparks widespread policy changes

Modified User Agreement may grant access to personal PCs in future

Samantha Young
Technical Editor

After a flood of feedback from concerned students, Computer Services issued a new memo to dorm residents on Aug. 29, informing them of changes in plans for dealing with the Blaster and Welchia/Nachi worms that have plagued campus networks.

All students, including those running operating systems other than those affected by the Blaster and Welchia worms, are strongly urged to use anti-virus software. A CD containing McAfee Corporate Edition may be obtained from Computer Services or downloaded from <http://www.utm.edu/antivirus>, should students wish to remedy the problem themselves.

For students who would rather entrust the process of de-worming their computers and installing the operating-system patch to professionals, Computer Services set up stations in the dorm lobbies on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday where students could bring their CPUs for repair.

Once their computers are cleaned, students are asked to call the Computer Services Help Desk at x7900 to have network access restored.

Students whose computers were serviced last Thursday say this is preferable to how Computer Services had handled the situation previously.

Wes Penn, a junior Marketing major from Memphis, was alone in his room last Thursday morning when four Computer Services technicians and the assistant hall director of Ellington knocked on his door. He allowed them to enter and to install anti-virus software on his computer. When they were finished, they began to work on his roommate's computer, deactivating a current version of Norton Anti-Virus and installing McAfee Corporate Edition.

"It was really intimidating," Penn said.

While Computer Services consented to student suggestion this time, Mike Abney, assistant director of Computer Services, has informed The Pacer that as-yet-unspecified changes will be made to the Network User Agreement in the near future which may allow technicians to enter rooms and access computers without permission.

Shannon Burgin, director of Computer Services, broadcasted an e-mail to students Thursday morning informing the campus that the special hotline for solving virus issues would be discontinued that evening.

Students still experiencing problems should contact the Computer Services Help Desk at 7900.

UTM to remember fallen heroes at football game

Joe Lofaro
Sports Information

UTM will "Salute America" during halftime of its football game against East Tennessee State University Sept. 11 at Hardy M. Graham Stadium.

Sept. 11, 2003, marks the second anniversary of the date the United States was attacked by terrorists. Since then, thousands of service men and women have responded to calls to defend the nation or care for those injured or killed in the line of duty.

In appreciation of those who have served, all military, police, firefighters, paramedics and health care personnel will be admitted free to the Skyhawk football game. Kickoff is set for 7:05 p.m.

Admission will be granted to those in uniform and those with any form of identification as past or present member of these groups.

A Salute to America tribute will be held at halftime to recognize these individuals by group.

Three U.S. Army Apache helicopters will fly over Graham Stadium before the game, and the Army ROTC drill team will perform at halftime. UTM English instructor Anna Clark will read an original essay as part of the "Salute to America."

The Skyhawk Experience gets under way at 5:30 p.m. at Graham Stadium. The sisters of the Xi Zeta chapter of Chi Omega will host their 13th Annual Chi Omega Barbecue. All proceeds from the barbecue will go to the UTM Athletics Department.

The barbecue begins at 5 p.m. and tickets may be purchased in advance by responding by phone by Sept. 9.

Alpha Delta Pi gets the gold

Neena Shetsky
ADP correspondent

The Delta Upsilon chapter of Alpha Delta Pi has done it again. This summer at the annual ADPi convention in Georgia, the sisters received the coveted Blake Golden Lion Award for the second time. Only seven Golden Lion chapters were represented at the convention and only one new chapter received Golden Lion for the first time.

The Golden Lion is awarded every two years to an ADPi chapter that has shown what it means to be a true ADPi in all areas. Golden Lion is not something that a chapter seeks to receive, it is something they already are, something they represent, and something they will always be. It is common for chapters to receive Golden Lion once, but it is difficult to receive it a second time, not to mention consecutively. Delta Upsilon chapter is very proud to have received this award again and strives to receive it again in two more years.

It was also stated at the convention that Delta Upsilon chapter is ranked seventh out of 150 chapters in the United States and Canada. They received awards for excellence in Scholarship, Total Membership Education, Alpha Education, Philanthropy, and the Harris Finance Award. In addition, the chapter's former recruitment advisor was elected to the Grand Council of ADPi, where she will oversee the finances of all ADPi chapters.

New policies may occur for UC

Erika Jacobsen
Staff Writer

Because of the recent events that took place in the UC on Friday, Aug. 22, some new policies have been recommended to ensure that similar incidents can be avoided in the future.

The following recommendations have been made to protect everyone:

- There must be two weeks notice prior to the event so that the room can be booked.
- A fee of $25 an hour is applied to all functions that take place after hours, which is 11 p.m.
- Every function must end by 2 a.m.
- No functions will occur after hours on weeknights.
- There is no alcohol permitted in the UC.
- All students and guests must adhere to the campus standard of conduct
- An advisor or alumni of the organization must be in attendance at functions to make sure that nothing gets out of hand.
- It is the university's policy that anything occurring at a function is the sole responsibility of the organization.

It's a shame that an isolated incident by an organization will cause changes that negatively impacts all students and organizations

Steve Vantrease,
University Center Director

Mr. Steve Vantrease, the UC director, proposed some new policies to the SGA, IFC, NPHC, and the Panhellenic Council to be discussed and voted on. The new recommendations include the following:

- There must be at least one security guard present, along with the advisor of the organization, for private parties.

- There must be at least two security guards present, along with the advisor for the organization, for public parties.

- The cost of the security guard or guards will be paid by the organization.

- The UC will be locked at all entrances and exits with the exception of a designated one allowing people coming and going to be monitored. The accepted policies will be in effect by the end of the month. When asked about these new policies, Mr. Vantrease said, "It's a shame that an isolated incident by an organization will cause changes that negatively impacts all students and organizations." In a previous interview with Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs Katie High told the Pacer that policy revisions may be occurring campus-wide, including buildings such as the Elam Center.

PRSSA to host Flock-The-Teacher

Richard K. Kimbley II
PRSSA Correspondent

Public Relations Student Society of America will begin its fundraising next week with a flock-the-teacher vote.

Members of PRSSA will attend all Communications classes and conduct a vote to see which Communications professor will get his or her yard "flocked" by wooden pink flamingos. Students may purchase as many votes as they wish, with votes costing $1 each. The proceeds from the "flocking" will go toward PRSSA's annual trip to the society's national conference, which this year is Oct. 24-28 in New Orleans.

PRSSA has more activities coming up soon. They will be selling Krispy Kreme donuts Sept. 8-12. The donuts are glazed and will be sold by the dozen. To order a box of Krispy Kreme donuts, email Erika Jacobsen, Fundraising chair, at erikadenise1@yahoo.com.

PRSSA will also be having a bake sale in the Humanities building within the next week.

PRSSA recently had its "Get Acquainted" cook-out and election. The event was hosted by faculty adviser Dr. Jeffrey Hoyer and was attended by the chair of the Communications Department, Dr. Robert Nanney.

The first order of business was the election of officers for this semester. The newly elected officers are: president - Judith Hill, vice president - Jamie Prince, secretary/treasurer - Sabrina Mosley, firm director - Katie Wine, chapter Webmaster - Natalie Simmons, public relations/communications chair - Nicole Iddings, special events chair - Nicole Bennington, fund-raising chair - Erika Jacobsen, and historian - Jennifer Hornbelt.

PRSSA is a student organization that helps prepare Communications students for careers in public relations. PRSSA's primary goal is to help students gain real world experience by assisting the university and local community with its promotional and communications needs.

PRSSA's next meeting is 12:20 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 16, in 309 Gooch. For information about PRSSA, contact Judith Hill at judithhill@charter.net or call (731) 587-6755.

Bobby J. Kelly, a former client of UTM's PRSSA chapter, stands amidst a flock of wooden pink flamingos that soon will find their way into a Communications faculty member's yard. PRSSA is using this "flock-the-teacher" event as a fund-raiser for its national conference trip.

Kaplan Publishers recognizes UTM for beautiful campus

Press Release
University Relations

The University of Tennessee at Martin was among six southeastern U.S. colleges and universities and 49 in the nation recognized in a campus-beauty category in Kaplan Publishing's The Unofficial, Unbiased Guide to the 328 Most Interesting Colleges, 2004 Edition, by Trent Anderson and Seppy Basili.

UT Martin was recognized in the category, "schools with the most beautiful campus in a suburban or rural setting." Other southeastern universities recognized in the category were Duke University, Auburn University, the University of Mississippi, Appalachian State University and Northwestern State University of Louisiana.

"This is well-deserved recognition for our campus," said Dr. Nick Dunagan, UT Martin chancellor. "The campus environment is critical for student success, and we will continue to emphasize UT Martin's beautiful grounds as part of what makes the university special."

The recognition is not the first for the university's landscaping. In 1993, the Professional Grounds Management Society presented a Grand Award to the campus in the society's "school and university grounds" category.

According to information provided by Kaplan, the results in this year's guide were obtained through Kaplan's 2004 National Survey of High School Guidance Counselors. The survey used Market Measurement, a national market research firm, that used a pure random sample of U.S. public, private and Catholic high schools obtained from Dun & Bradstreet.

The foundation of the survey was telephone interviews conducted within the sample provided for high school guidance counselors. To further enhance the accuracy and "projectability" of the study findings, Market Measurement also incorporated data weighting to ensure that the final study findings accurately reflect the total number of high school-aged students in each state.

Besides the statistical information, guidance counselors were invited to share insights about the colleges with which they were most familiar.

Ministerial alliance hosts prayer breakfast

Nathan Washburn
Staff Writer

The Third Annual Soybean Prayer Breakfast was held Wednesday morning at Martin's First Baptist Church.

This year's prayer breakfast was the largest since it began in 2001, with over 100 people attending the 6:45 a.m. program. The breakfast was put on by the Martin Area Ministerial Alliance and is designed to bring together people from different backgrounds and religious beliefs to labor in prayer for our community.

The program included the singing of hymns, special music from Craig Ingram, a devotional challenge, and of course, prayer for various needs in the community. The speaker was Dr. George Daniel, Director of Institutional Research and Planning at UTM, and he spoke on the subject of the harvest, both agriculturally and spiritually. Dr. Daniel, having grown up on a farm, said that farmers often live poor in this life but die rich if they know God personally.

He then likened the life of a Christian to that of a farmer by explaining that, like a farmer, a Christian needs five things: commitment, perseverance, work, acceptance, and patience. "It was a refreshing reminder that in this life we may live poor, but if we know Christ we can die rich. The law of the harvest is an irrefutable law-we always reap what we sow; this is true spiritually as well as agriculturally," said Dr. Roger S. Oldham, pastor of First Baptist Church.

Other than the prayer for the blessing of the meal offered by Rodney Freed, there were three areas of need targeted with prayer. Dave Reinhart offered a prayer of gratitude and intercession for the timely rains, Robert Gardner offered a prayer of commitment, and Carol Dickerson offered a prayer for healing of our land as the benediction.

"It was good to see so many people from different churches and backgrounds in the community to come together for the common purpose of prayer," said Gavin Breedon, a freshman Psychology major. "It was good to see so many committed to pray for the community, and the bacon was good," said Aaron Kennedy, a senior Social Work major.

Night on the Country with Chris Cagle

Cagle shows he's 'Country by the Grace of God'

Emily Vick
Features Editor

Chicks dig him...and it's easy to see why. Chris Cagle is one of the hottest country stars out today, and after seeing his live show, it's not hard to see why.

During his show on Wednesday night, Cagle wasn't afraid to get loud or crazy.

He came out to a mix of songs including Kid Rock's Cowboy and the Steve Miller Band's Spaceboy plus several others.

Then Cagle jumped into several of his own songs. He opened with The Love Between a Woman and a Man, then came the title track from his first album, Play It Loud.

Cagle played several songs off his first album. These were the previously mentioned Play It Loud, Laredo, I Breathe In, I Breathe Out, Country by the Grace of God, and The Love Between a Woman and a Man. He sang his hits including Laredo, I Breathe, I Breathe Out, and Chicks Dig It.

Songs off of his second album, Chris Cagle, that were performed included Chicks Dig It, Night on the Country, I Love It When She Does That, and several others.

In the middle of the show, Cagle took some time to show love to Dale Earnhardt with his own rendition of Dobie Gray's Drift Away. He ended the song with, "Rest in Peace, my brotha!"

When he broke into his hit song, Chicks Dig It, Cagle told the audience that this song was written for all of the stud redneck cowboys here in Tennessee.

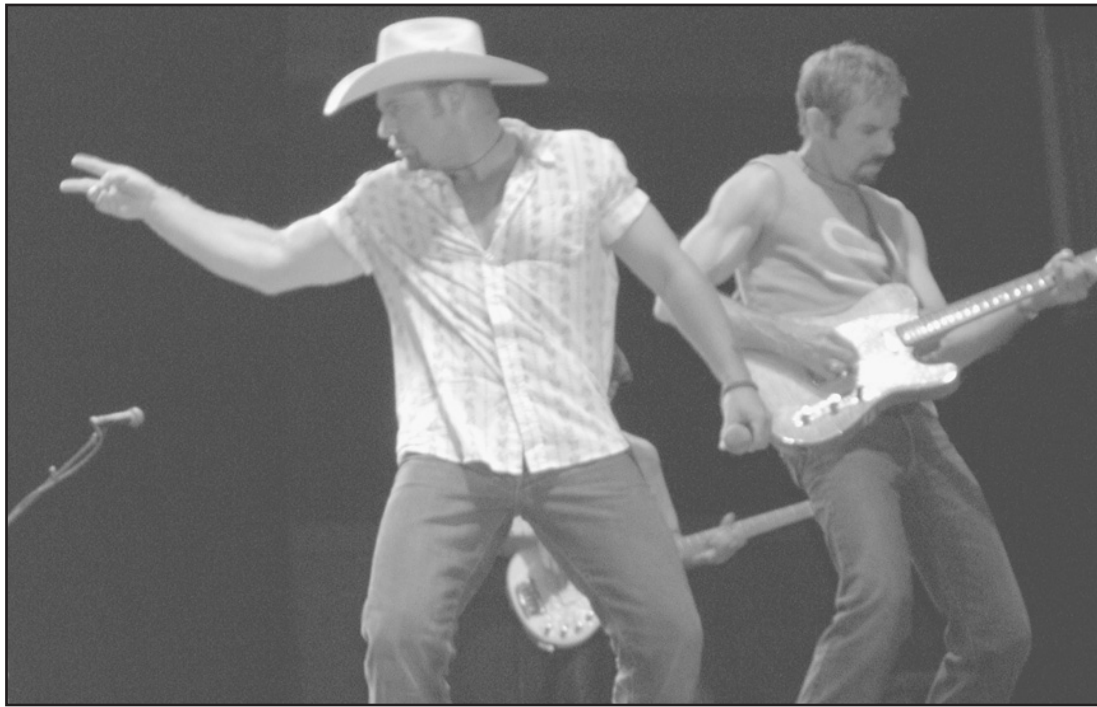

He continued his set with his hit song, Country by the Grace of God. He also encouraged the audience to do whatever it takes to make their dreams come true. He spoke of how he left Texas to chase his dream of being a country star without his father's blessing. Although it was hard for him, he said that it was worth it. This semi-afterschool special moment was before he came back for an encore that included several more songs.

Cagle is a native of Baytown, Texas, which is described "a rugged knot of shoreline just outside Houston" on his website, www.chriscagle.com. On the site, Cagle is described as "a blue collar, working class country singer who's not afraid to sweat or get loud."

The concert, which was part of the Soybean Festival, was opened by the West Tennessee Idol, Steven Whitson, and Craig Morgan.

Along with his keyboard player, fiddle player, guitarist, and bassist, Chris Cagle gave Martin a great show. And whether it's merely luck or actually the grace of God, Cagle proved he's country.

Chris Cagle 'shakes his stuff' to the delight of the country music fans.

Morgan, Whitson give Something to Write Home About

Concert allows fan interaction

Rebecca Paschall
Special Projects Editor

One country music star looked as if he was "almost home" Wednesday night in the Skyhawk arena as he performed in front of nearly 2,000 people.

Craig Morgan gave an energetic and exciting performance singing many of his hits such as I'm Country, Almost Home, Something to Write Home About and Money.

Morgan also performed his newly released hit, Friday Afternoon which tells the story of a divorced father who must deal with the fact that his ex-wife is moving to another state with their child.

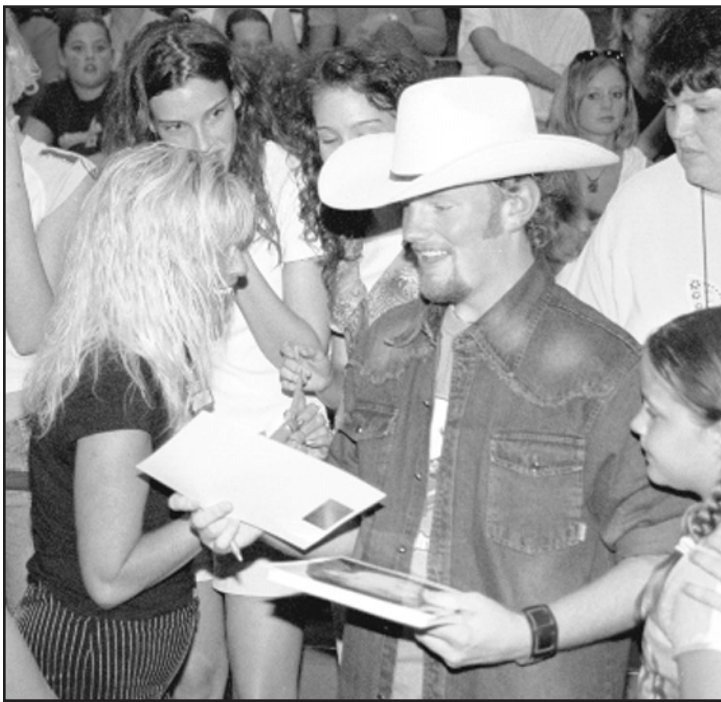

Besides running off stage and interacting with the fans, Morgan also added a special touch to his performance by sporting a UT Martin jersey! Morgan put the jersey on right before he sang My Redneck of the Woods.

Morgan stated at the concert that to be in his "redneck of the woods," we'd have to drive to Dickson, TN. Another fact that most people would not know about Morgan is that he has a military background. According to www.craigmorgan.com, Morgan was enlisted in the Army in the airborne division.

Morgan became a rappel master and jump master. He also participated in Operation Just Cause, the U.S. military operation that removed Panama's Manuel Noriega from power.

Morgan's love for writing has brought him to the completion and release of his second album, I Love It. More information on Craig Morgan can be found on his web site.

Morgan's act was preceded by Steven Whitson, the WWYN West TN Idol. Whitson sang many other artist's songs including 19 something by Mark Wills, Wrapped Up In You by Garth

Brooks, Amazed by Lonestar and How Do You Like Me Now by Toby Keith. Whitson sang one original song titled As Long As You Love Me. Whitson co-wrote the song with his father and a friend.

Proceeds of the concert went to the construction of a new soccer pavilion at the Martin Recreation Complex.

Beatle-mania revived in downtown Martin

Chris West
Asst. Features Editor

After the pre-emptive fifteen minute rock-star sound check, the Fab Four from Liverpool turned on the time machine and took the Soybean Festival back to 1964.

Mark Benson, Gary Grimes, James Pou, and Greg George, otherwise known as John, Paul, George, and Ringo, respectively, rocked Martin Thursday night on the main stage of the Soybean Festival. With vintage 1960's era equipment in a show that has been heralded by such publications and television programs as "Entertainment Tonight," PM

Magazine, CNN, The USA Network, and The Nashville Network, 1964: The Tribute has played venues from Carnegie Hall to good ol' Martin, TN.

The band teased the patient crowd before launching into their first song.

"We're all ready to play, but we're not going to play for another fifteen minutes since you all have gotten so good at waiting."

The band began playing early Beatles songs as the crowd cheered and sang along. Families in their lawn chairs tapped toes while their children played in the grass to the warm glow of the stage as the band faithfully recreated Beatles' hits such as "I Wanna Hold Your Hand."

1964: The Tribute have spent years researching the Beatles: their on-stage mannerisms, their clothing and hair styles, all the way down to the exact guitars and amplifiers the Beatles would have used in their landmark 1964 performance on The Ed Sullivan Show. The Beatles tribute band prides themselves on using the same equipment as the original Fab Four. The fellows play Gretsch guitars, Ludwig drum, and Vox amplifiers to get their vintage sound.

Beatle George Harrison's sister Lou speaks about 1964: The Tribute on the band's website. "They have captured the Beatles' exact essence - onstage their look and sound is incredible."

The band has played colleges, fairs, and festivals all over the world, and was voted "Best Major Concert Act" and "Best Contemporary Act" by Campus Activities Today Magazine.

They were also voted "Contemporary Music Artists of the Year" by the National Association for Campus Activities and "Campus Entertainers of the Year" by the Canadian Association for Campus Activities.

Eventually time turned back and the Fab Four had to leave, but for one more faithful night in Martin, the Fab Four rocked this town with the music millions of fans the world over have enjoyed for almost 40 years.

Boy Meets Boy breaks ground as premiere gay reality dating series

Boy Meets Boy, a new reality dating series, breaks down the stereotypes between the gay and straight male image.

The show, which airs on Bravo, is television's first gay dating series. James, the leading man, has to choose between 15 men to take on a trip to New Zealand with him.

When left to choose between three men, James and his best friend Andra learn about the secret twist of the show: some of

"It's not easy to fit in when you have to pretend to be something you're not," said Dan.

The irony is that the gay men don't know about the straight men and the straight men don't know who the other straight men are.

"I really learned that you have no idea who is and who isn't [gay], and it really doesn't matter," said Brian A. "Love everyone for who they are."

Between the three men left (Wes, Franklin and Brian), one is actually straight. If James happens to choose the one straight guy at the end, the guy would leave the show with $25,000.

"A part of me is welling up with fear," said James, the leading man. "What if, after all is said and done, I pick somebody who is playing a game?"

With a few hours left before the final selection ceremony, the three men prepare to meet James one last time and get ready for either rejection or acceptance.

"If I were to pick the straight guy, I think my world would just come crashing down," said James.

Brian comes out to meet James first and ends up being eliminated because James doesn't want to hurt him.

Franklin is the next to see James and is also eliminated.

James chose Franklin to be the straight guy of the group and was correct in his choice.

"There is so much that we, as gay men, have to fight against already ... the fear that we can be infiltrated for another goal in something that we thought was just about love, hurts," said James to Franklin after hearing his reasons for coming on the show.

Last to come out was Wes, who ended up being chosen by James as his companion to New Zealand.

"When I found out the guys that I thought were gay were actually straight, at first you feel deceived, you feel angry ... then you realize they're good people," said Wes. "What's changed? Just their sexuality. And that's a lesson I hope everyone gets from this."

Cross country teams open season in City of 'Delta Blues'

The UTM cross country teams will open their 2003 season under the lights in the Memphis Twilight Classic tomorrow at the Mike Rose Soccer Complex.

The Skyhawk men will run a two-mile race beginning at 8:30 p.m., while the women's two-mile race gets under way at 9:15 p.m.

"This is the first night meet we have competed in, so this should be interesting," said head cross country coach Jason McKinney.

The Memphis Twilight Classic offers runners the unique experience of running at night in the City of the "Delta Blues."

Among the other schools competing in the college races will be Alcorn State, Arkansas State, Arkansas Tech, Christian Brothers, Freed-Hardeman, Hendrix College, Jackson State, Mississippi College, Mississippi State, Mississippi Valley State, Murray State, Southern Mississippi, Southeast Missouri State and Arkansas-Little Rock.

McKinney said his 2003 lineup includes mostly juniors. "We want to make a breakthrough with two years of strength and maturity," McKinney said.

On the women's side, McKinney added Becky McEwen, along with Hannah Clawson who was a redshirt last season.

"What the women lack in depth, they make up in strength. They should be able to break into the top five this year in our conference," McKinney said.

Shalaine Phaup looks to be a prime candidate for All-OVC honors after finishing one place out last season.

On the men's side, McKinney and the Skyhawks will rely on the tradition they started two years ago.

"If the summer is any indication of the future, then it will be a great year," McKinney said. "Three athletes have already set new personal records and everyone is putting together a strong base."

McKinney said this is the first year the Skyhawks will focus on team places as well as individual finishes.

Skyhawk volleyball falls flat at Arkansas State tournament

UTM head volleyball coach Chris Rushing had mixed emotions about his team's effort in last weekend's Arkansas State Classic in Jonesboro.

The Skyhawks lost matches to Northwestern State, Arkansas State, Memphis and Arkansas-Little Rock.

"We just didn't have it Friday," Rushing said. The Skyhawks lost 3-1 to Northwestern State and 3-0 to Arkansas State, the tournament host and eventual champion.

"We played extremely well Saturday," Rushing said.

"Had we played that way Friday we would have been 2-0 going into Saturday's matches against Memphis and Arkansas-Little Rock."

The Skyhawks lost 3-2 to Memphis and Arkansas-Little Rock.

Senior Jamie Fitzwater led the Skyhawks throughout the tournament. Fitzwater, a 6-0, outside hitter from Naples, Fla., had 59 kills in the four matches. She turned in a .229 hitting percentage and had 16 total blocks and five service aces.

Junior Maribeth Hanneman earned the starting job at setter, while Heather Kea, the team's only other senior, earned the starting job at the other outside hitter position.

Forced to build around the two seniors, Rushing relied on his talented group of underclassmen. "Maribeth was a little nervous in the first two games, but she settled down for Saturday's matches and she was able to get the hitters the ball," Rushing said.

Among the freshmen that played in the tournament were Kirsten Thompson, Mandy Kroll, Kim Tipton, Tammy Konitzer and Krissy Neumann.

"We will continue to see some inconsistency, but that will improve through-

Women's basketball home attendance among top 70 in nation

The UTM women's basketball home attendance is the 68th highest in the nation among 322 Division I teams.

"This is the fifth consecutive year we have been ranked among the top 75," said Gary Van Atta, Skyhawk women co-head coach. "We are excited about the streak, and we hope to continue it."

The Skyhawk women played 12 homes games this past season and their average home attendance was 1,711. The team drew more than 20,500 total fans for the 12 games. The team's home attendance average was the second highest in the OVC. Tennessee Tech led the conference in average home attendance with 2,789, and was ranked 39th in the nation.

"Our home attendance is a huge credit to our fans," Van Atta said. "We have the greatest fans in the world."

Out of 31 Division I conferences, the OVC was ranked 11th in home attendance. The OVC, with nine schools in the league last season, averaged 1,213 spectators in attendance per game. The 2002-2003 season set a record high in attendance for the OVC.

The Skyhawks' average home attendance was better than the Southeastern Conference's Kentucky, Florida and Alabama. UTM also had a higher average than Michigan, Louisville, Ohio, Tulane and even Villanova, who upset national champion Connecticut.

"We want to build on our attendance and crack into the top 50," Van Atta said.

The Skyhawks ranked fifth in home attendance in Tennessee. UTK was second in the nation with a 12,585 average. The Lady Vols played 16 home games.

Vanderbilt was second in the state and 21st in the nation with a 4,339 average. Tennessee Tech was third. UTC was ranked 61st with an average of 1,879.

The University of Memphis was not among the top 120 schools. Connecticut sported the highest home attendance average in the nation. The Huskies averaged 12,859 fans to their home games.

According to the National Collegiate Athletic Association, a total of 10,163,629 spectators attended NCAA women's games in 2002-03, a jump of 630,848 from 2001-02. The 322 Division I teams fueled the boost by eclipsing the seven million mark for the first time, totaling 7,351,634 spectators, up 413,821 from 2001-02.
